

THE INTERFAITH JOURNAL ON RELIGION, ART & ARCHITECTURE

Michael J. Crosbie, Ph.D., AIA
Editor-in-Chief

2009 Editorial Calendar

Vol. 42, No. 1: Education Issue: The Light in Worship Spaces

For many, light symbolizes God's presence in sacred space. This special issue (produced in collaboration with the Interfaith Forum on Religion, Art, and Architecture, a knowledge community of the American Institute of Architects) will focus on the role of natural and artificial lighting in religious environments. Experts in the field of lighting will share their insights on effective lighting strategies, the power of light in creating a setting for worship, and new lighting technologies.

(Ad and editorial deadline: January 15, 2009; Pub Date: February 28, 2009)

Vol. 42, No. 2: Potpourri Issue

This issue will collect a variety of viewpoints and subject matter relevant to various faith traditions and the design and construction of sacred spaces. The articles will cover some of the latest developments in religious art and architecture, and feature the work of leaders in the field.

(Ad and editorial deadline: April 15, 2009; Pub Date: May 31, 2009)

Vol. 42, No. 3: Special Theme Issue: Identity and Ecumenism in Religious Space

In this theme issue Faith & Form examines the many ways in which sacred space communicates denominational identity (spatial arrangement and location of objects) and how the transformation of sacred space can accommodate new use of an existing space by other denominations, promote ecumenism among faiths, and how non-religious buildings can be reborn as sacred settings.

(Ad and editorial deadline: July 15, 2009; Pub Date: August 31, 2009)

Vol. 42, No. 4: 2009 Awards Issue

This is the issue that readers wait all year for. It presents the results of the Faith & Form/IFRAA International Religious Art and Architecture Design Awards program, selected by a panel of experts in sacred art and architecture. The winners are published with comments by the designers and the jury. Each of the award-winning projects will inspire readers with inventive, thoughtful, and spirited solutions to designing for many different congregations.

(Ad and editorial deadline: October 15, 2009; Pub Date: November 30, 2009)

47 Grandview Terrace
Essex, CT 06426

Cell: 860.575.4702
E-Mail: mcrosbie@faithandform.com
Web: www.faihandform.com